What is networking?

Networking

The action or process of interacting with others to exchange information and develop professional or social contacts.

- Connect with others in your industry
- Learn new skills
- Discover opportunities
- Build connections and valuable relationships
- Exchange important information

Networking Examples

What kind of contacts would be most helpful & how do you feel about starting to connect with people?

MYTH 1 – I DON'T NEED TO DO THIS

Finding the WHY

University of
East London

You've probably heard this all before...

75% of jobs are NOT filled through job postings

You've probably heard this all before...

93% of Business to Business marketers feel that LinkedIn is the best place online to win leads

What is your WHY for connecting with people?

Gain advice/introductions from people already doing the kind of work you are interested in

Connect with potential partners and collaborators

Meet new people who are working or studying in a similar field

Find mentors in a specific industry

Get information about job /work opportunities not advertised via jobs boards

Get feedback on a project or idea

Learn about the latest industry developments and trends

Get feedback and information from hiring managers and influencers

MYTH 2 – I DON'T LIKE DOING THIS

Understanding how to break the cycle of avoidance

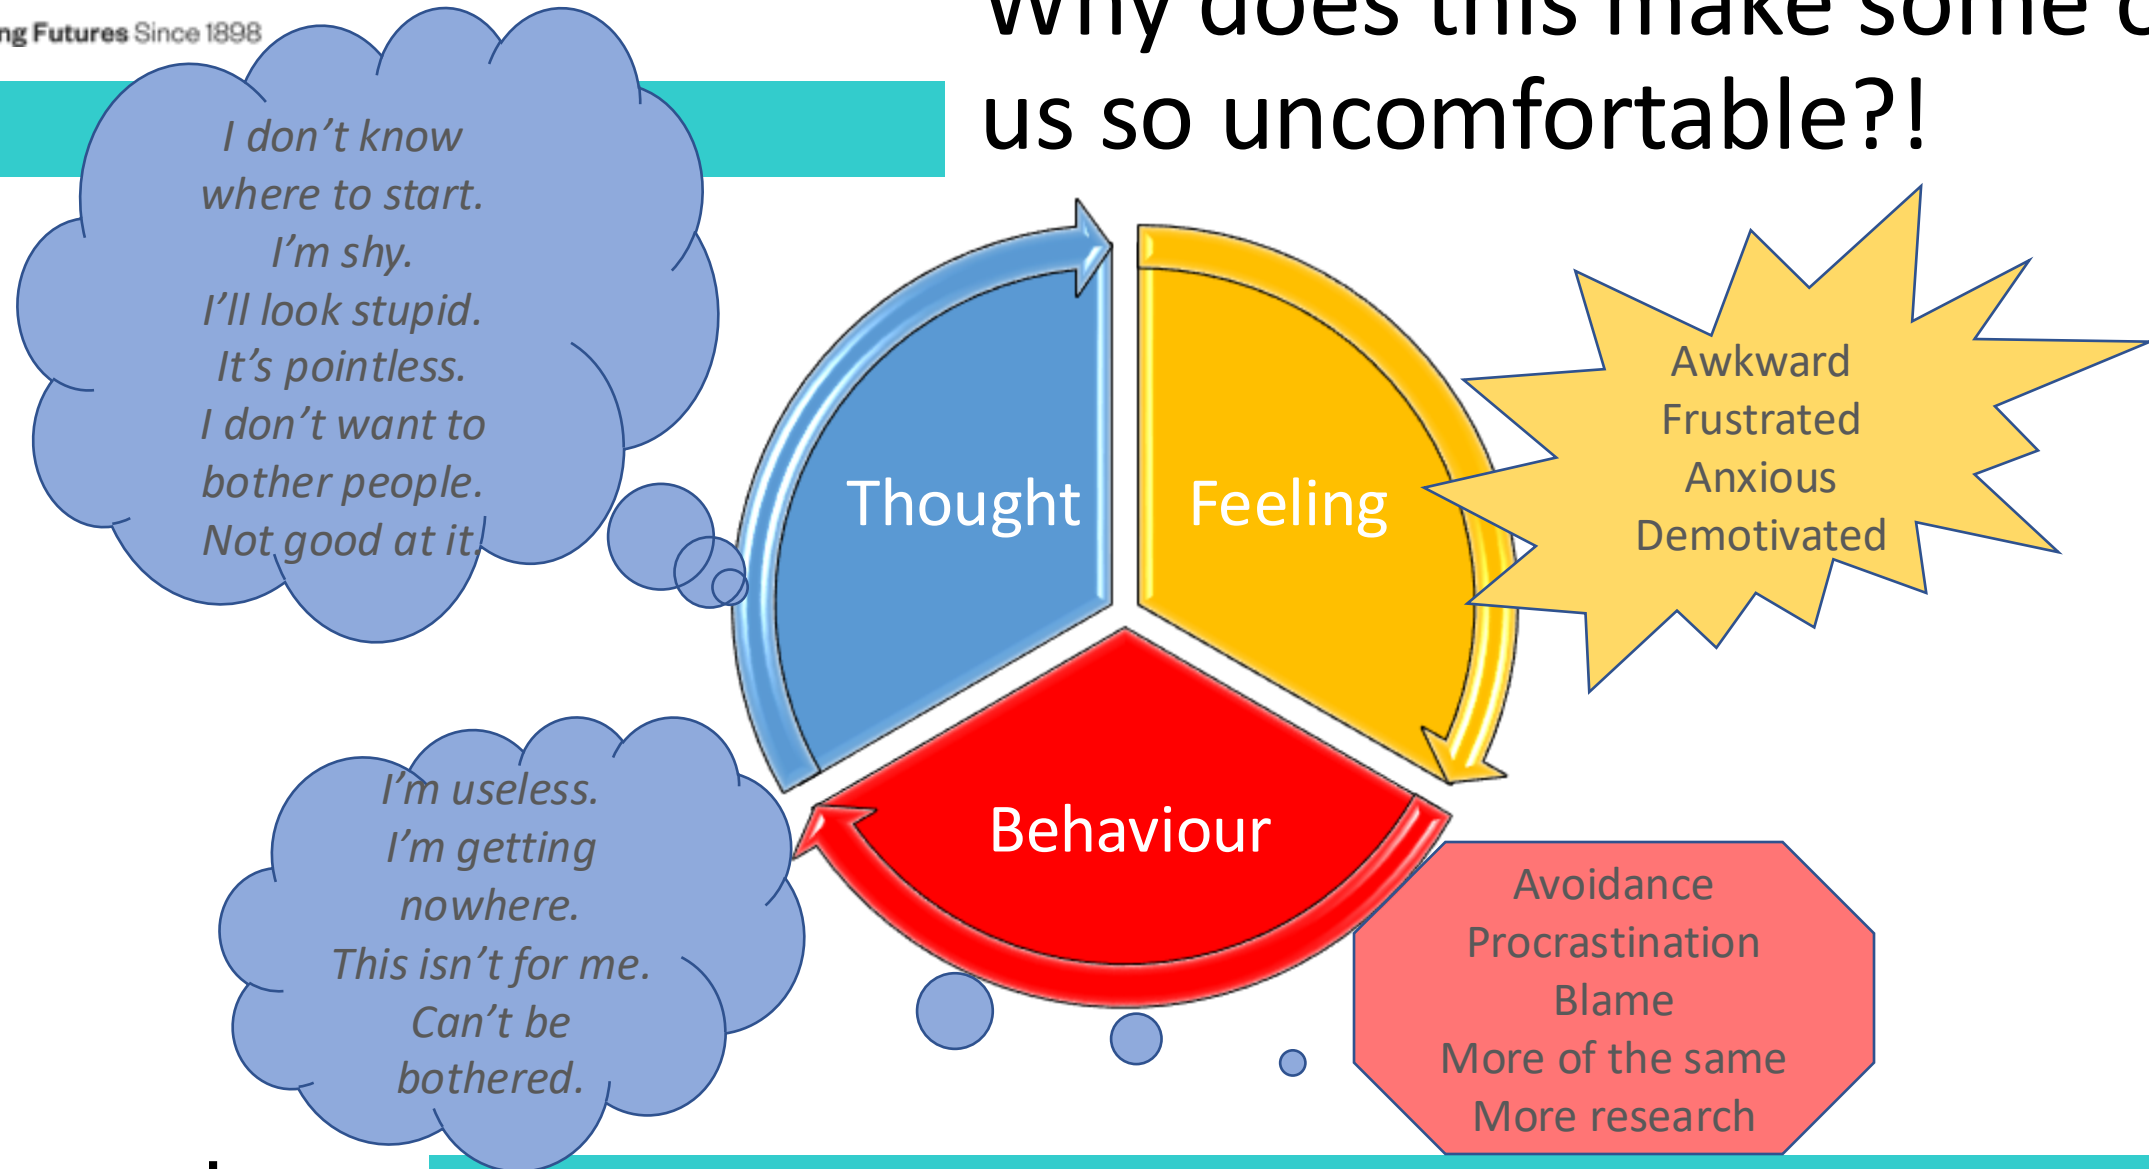

University of
East London

Why does this make some of us so uncomfortable?!

Why does this make some of us so uncomfortable?!

MYTH 3 – I DON'T KNOW ANYONE TO CONTACT

There are always more people in your network than you think

University of

Your network is bigger than you think!

What conversations could you have that will get you closer to the employers/ clients/ collaborators or influencers you want to reach?

Where can you connect with people from your sector?

Introductions – academics / peers
/ colleagues / personal contacts

Events – UEL / Professional bodies / Eventbrite

Search Linked In – job title/ alumni / organisation then contact via LI or email if you can

MYTH 4 – THEY DON'T WANT TO HEAR FROM ME

Realising that most of the time people are only too happy to hear from you and help out

University of

What would you do if you received a message like this?

Hi, I'm soon to graduate from UEL in computer science and I noticed that you have gone on to find an amazing role at Robotix Ltd following your degree.

In my dissertation I looked in depth into how AI is transforming robotics which I know is a big focus for your company. I wondered if you'd be happy to have a quick chat in the next couple of weeks to give me an insight into what your role involves, and share any advice you have to someone starting out in the industry?

You have more to offer than you think...

Hiring
Background
Flattery
Knowledge
Attention
Give-back

MYTH 5 – I DON'T KNOW WHAT TO SAY

Find the most relevant point of connection

University of

What have you got in common?

Connecting in person

What stands out as a talking point – speakers / location / food / travel?

What research can you do about attendees before or after?

Are you better one on one or in a group?

Try letting people come to you?

Connecting online

Do you know anyone in common? Could they introduce you?

Did they study @ UEL or a similar course?

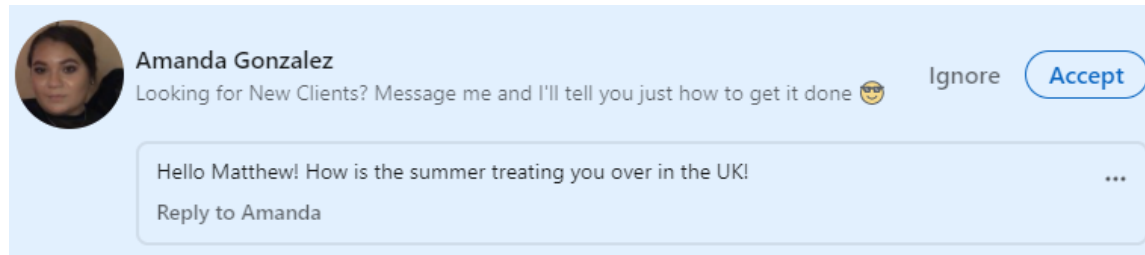

Does your dissertation cross-over with their work?

Have they spoken at an event or put out any content you liked?

Is there anything about their work / career path that you admire?

How to present yourself

ONLINE

- Who are you (if relevant)...e.g. I am a fellow UEL performing arts graduate
- What is the connection...e.g. Jane Smith recommended I get in touch/ I read your blog on y
- What is your request... e.g. Would you have 20 mins to share your experience & advice for someone starting out

IN PERSON

What brings you here?

...I'm doing a Postgrad in x and looking at how I can leverage my degree and experience in y

And remember folks...

PEOPLE ARE REALLY BUSY. Don't be surprised if you don't hear back. Most of the time you will need to send a polite reminder and you may only hear from 10-20% of people you contact. Don't pin your hopes on any one contact.

BUT...

The odds of getting a response might feel low, but research shows we significantly underestimate the willingness of others to help us — by more than 50%.

When I asked a senior executive why he responded to younger people, he echoed a common refrain: "They simply asked and followed up ... most people don't. I find it very hard to say no to a sincere, well thought-out request, especially when it is about something concrete and simple, like making an introduction."

[Harvard Business Review, 2019]

DO'S & DON'TS

- ✓ Be yourself, don't pretend to be something you're not
- ✓ Be authentic and honest
- ✓ Be polite
- ✓ Be specific in what you request
- ✓ Be persistent but considerate
- ✓ Keep track of conversations, follow up after
- ✓ If at first you don't succeed, keep trying

- ✗ Be afraid to be enthusiastic with your praise & appreciation
- ✗ ...BUT don't be fake
- ✗ Forget they will look at your online presence to check you out
- ✗ Be too wordy (keep in short & sweet)
- ✗ Make any typos
- ✗ Ask for a job

Your challenge for today...

For your Upcoming UCAS Fairs or Open Days

- Identify 1-2 contacts you would like to speak to / reach out to
- Create your Introduction
  - Who are you?
  - What are you currently studying?
  - What would you like to study at University?
- Create your Questions/ Request
  - What would you like to know?
    - Information?
    - Opportunities?
    - Services?
